VARSITY MEETS CRIMSON TEAM IN STADIUM SATURDAY-MOREY TAKES 23 ON FIRST TRIP; LEFT AT NOON

Blue And White Team Has Six Veterans On Team; Doubt Whether Papke Or Klevenow Will Play

SEVERAL IN SQUAD RECEIVE INJURIES

Eleven Yearlings Make Squad — Captain Drost And Ashley Show Speed In Early Work Outs

The noon train carried 23 of Coach Morey's wards to Boston today, where they will prepare for the opening of the local season with the big Crimson eleven on Saturday afternoon, in the Stadium, at Cambridge. Of the 23 men in the squad, but 6 are veterans of last year's 'Varsity, while the remaining men have had little experience with college teams such as they will meet during the coming season.

Although a week was added to the training period due to the postponement of the opening of college until today, the team is far behind its training schedule as compared to that of last year. The spread of an epidemic among the men while they were in training at Lake Dunmore, followed by the injury of Papke and Klevenow, both veterans of last year's eleven, came as a climax to the work at the Dunmore camp. Four other members of the squad, Reigleman, Kilbride, Mullen and Novotny, sustained injuries during this period. All of the members of the latter group will have recovered sufficiently to play, if needed in the Harvard game.

Due to the small squad, the work of Coach Morey in choosing his first and second string men has been particularly difficult. He has been able to put the team through but few scrimmage practices, and during the past week has contented himself chiefly with putting the team through the various play formations he will try against the big Crimson team. While the men reporting are very promising, but few have had sufficient experience in football to be of much value to the team this year. All of the second string men are inexperienced.

Of the new men, 5 will make 'Varsity places, while the 6 veterans returning will complete the line-up. New men continue to report for practice

Campus To Have Summary of Game —Will Post Copies In Store Windows.

If the success of a team is measured in the support accorded it by loyal alumni, the Middlebury 'Varsity team, which plays in the Stadium at Cambridge Saturday afternoon, should win hands down. 200 Middlebury Alumni, living in and around Boston, are to attend a luncheon at the City Club of Boston at noon Saturday, and after a few toasts have been given to Morey's men they will go to a section especially reserved for them in the Stadium.

SUMMER SESSION TO FOUND TWO FOREIGN LANGUAGE SCHOOLS

Director Makes Announcement Of New Project

REGISTRATION—445

Five Schools Have Record Number Enrolled

The establishment of a French School in France and a Spanish School in Spain, to be opened next summer, was made public this morning in an announcement from the office of Dr. Edward D. Collins, Director of the Summer Session. These foreign sections of the French and Spanish schools will in no way interfere with the regular sessions of these schools which will be conducted here.

The founding of the project will provide an opportunity for foreign study and travel, and will give teachers, in particular, a contact with French and Spanish life, customs and habits. By affording actual contact with the natives of the two countries, students will be able to develop at a more rapid rate than would be possible even under the excellent systems maintained here. The modern language schools of Middlebury are recognized as the leading institutions of their kind in the country.

According to present plans the foreign branches of the modern language schools will be in charge of assistant Deans who are thoroughly familiar with the aims and methods of the Middlebury language schools. Courses provide for a month's residence work in some selected localtiy, under the direct management of the college, and with credit for such study to all duly qualified students.

Plan Extention Courses

In conjunction with the new work in France and Spain, plans are under way to establish extention courses. While it is impossible to hold evening sessions as institutions situated in some of the larger cities do, the work will be developed along correspondence lines. The courses in composition will be conducted by the Deans of both the French and Spanish Schools.

The past summer session was the largest ever witnessed at Middlebury, the number registered in the five schools totaling 445. This is an increase of nearly 17 percent over that of last year when the summer session was attended by 388. The registration this year was divided as follows: The French School 186; The Spanish School 105; The Chemestry School 27; The English School 101; and The Music School 38.

This is the fourteenth year in which Middlebury has carried on its summer courses and during this period the nature and importance of the work has undergone a complete transformation. Beginning in 1909 with a smaal enrollment the summer session was perhaps the least important of the various college enterprises then taking shape under the vigorous leadership of President Thomas.

At the present time, largely owing to the peculiar turn given to the organization and to the high standard of work assumed under the leadership of Dr. Collins, the opening of the language schools is the occasion of a pilgrimage of modern language teachers from all sections of the United States. The French, Spanish, and English Schools stand easily in a class by Hugh Walpole, noted English essayist and literary critic, who arrived in New York last Saturday on the Cunarder Mauretania, is scheduled to lecture at Middlebury Oct. 12. In general the subjects of his lectures in this country will be "Novel Writing," "Psychology and Fiction" and "Books and Friendship."

In an interview recently granted a New York Times reporter, Mr. Walpole gave his views on general conditions in Europe and the Near East. The main problem, he said, was getting England and France to agree to work togteher. What they did would not matter so long as they worked to-

99 Men, 63 Women, In Entering Class; 264 Women, 257 Men, Enrolled. Complete Figures Next Week

At 9:15 this morning with registration still in progress in the McCullough Gymnasium, 521 Students had registered. Of this number, 257 are members of the Men's College and 264 members of the Women's College.

The entering class will probably exceed the 100 mark for the men, and is likely to reach 65 for the women. When the report was made this morning, 99 men had registered for the class of 1926, while 63 women were registered for the same class.

Portion Of Trustee's Letter Suggests Text Of Annual Sermon To Student Body At Opening Service

URGES STUDENTS TO LEARN WORK HABIT

Largest Student Body Ever Assembled Here Packs Chapel To Capacity At Morning Meeting

President Paul D. Moody opened the 123d Academic year of Middlebury College, in Mead Memorial Chapel this morning. President Moody took as his text a portion of a letter written to him by a Middlebury Trustee relative to Middlebury as a College.

President Moody's address was as follows:

This week I received a letter from one of the Trustees of this College, a part of which I am going to quote:

"The situation of the College ought to enable you all to adopt a wise selective process. I sympathize quite strongly with the attitude taken by President Hopkins at Dartmouth. I believe a very large percentage, if not a majority, of the boys go to college now because it is the stylish thing to do and not because they have any particular aspirations to become more efficient and of greater use in the world. To find out the boys that ought to have such an education and who will be of more worth to the world if educated, is the serious problem which the heads of our American colleges must meet and solve."

This is an admirable text, but if you would feel more at home with one taken from Holy Writ, I would suggest that familiar one, "Many are called but few are chosen," for that is precisely what the expression "Many are called but few are chosen" means.

Collegeward Movement Is Large

The collegeward movement at the present day is quite unprecedented. We here in one of the smaller colleges have felt it in proportion just as much as the larger institutions. The reason for it is that the world is coming to a constantly increasing appreciation of what training and education mean.

H. G. Wells has declared that "History is a race between education and disaster." Society has come one of the great tribulation of the War, not chastened at all points as it should be, but with a keener realization of the necessity of education. The thoughtful man knows, and knows right well, that if he is to be of the greatest use, he must educate his mind. Good intentions unsupported by brains are a nuisance.

Only this week I came across and reread a letter written me some years ago by Doctor Cutten, who is being installed president of Colgate University this coming month, in which he said, "I am coming to the conclusion more and more that the curse of this world is good people who do not know anything or are unbalanced. Their very goodness gives weight to their bad or erratic thinking."

It is because of this increased demand for education that those who are fortunate enough to obtain it, should count their blessings and be grateful in the right way, taking them as a gift of society, which lays upon them an obligation to society.

You hear it said sometimes that a man has earned his way through college, or paid for his own education. Nothing was ever more absurd. We know what people mean by this and of course there is that element of truth in it. But the thoughtful man or woman who goes through college knows right well that he or she is the inheritor of priceless gifts, for which one can never pay.

The story is told of one of the great figures in the English Church in the last century, that he was once called

"QUALITY NOT NUMBERS" SHOULD BE MIDDLEBURY'S MOTTO SAYS DR. BARTON

Although a member of the Board of Trustees of Middlebury College, I cannot speak for any member of the Board except myself, and yet I have no reason to believe that anything that I say here would not have the approval of all of my colleagues on the Board. While writing as a member of the Board of Trustees, I cannot forget for a moment that I am also a graduate of the College. Therefore what I say on behalf of the Board of Trustees I also say on behalf of myself as a graduate. I cannot separate the two personalities.

The Trustees have been delighted at the new life taken on by the College in the last few years. The external development in the extent of its campus, the number and character of the new buildings, the increase in the endowment and the faculty, and the consciousness of a new place in the college world, have cheered the heart of every member of the Board as well as of every friend of the College. We have all looked with great satisfaction upon the development of the Summer School which has already achieved national reputation. All this warms and cheers our hearts and gives us new courage and hope for the future of the old College on the hill.

VOL. XIX. Sept. 28, 1922 No. 1

Muriel Barker

The Campus, on behalf of the undergraduate body, wishes to extend its sincerest sympathy to the family and to the many friends of Muriel Barker in their grief at her death.

What Of The Future?

It is a strange coincidence that the line of thought developed by President Moody in his opening address of the academic year before the student body assembled in the Mead Chapel, should be in substance the same as that developed by Dr. James L. Barton, in his article in this issue of The Campus. By the "choice" of 175 people out of several hundred who applied, Middlebury has finally attained a position in the collegiate world which is rightfully and justly hers.

Is it not a curious turn of fate that instead of having to go out and beg students to enter institutions of higher education, as was formerly the situation, not only at Middlebury, but as well in other colleges and universities throughout the country, now students come in unprecedented numbers to all colleges seeking admission. Probably it is a present day style, a fad, that ultimately will wear itself out. But what if it should continue to increase, instead of diminsh? What then would be the solution of the problem?

One can hardly agree with the plan of separating the "wheat from the chaff," or of the policy of accepting students who happen to be sons and daughters of alumni of the college, and rejecting students whose preparatory school scholarship was of a higher degree.Until human judgement can be proven infallible, the present systems in vogue are but chance opinions, which may be correct, and which may, on the other hand, shoot wide of the mark.

American colleges and universities should provide some means of accomodating all who apply for admission, and Middlebury should not be unmindful of the need of doing this.

It is a curious turn of fate that Middlebury should be doing this very thing, although on a small scale at the present time. In this issue of The Campus, the Director of the Summer Session announces the offering of extension courses in the modern language schools, to be carried on by correspondence.

This is a way out. Here is a practical plan for meeting a most craving need. A small college, such as Middlebury, is unable to accomodate all who knock at her doors for admission. To turn those away who do not present as excellent scholarship records as others, is to fail. To offer them some means of acquiring a higher education, whereby they may compete on an equal basis with those about them, is to succeed.

Middlebury, with her vast resources, her able and well trained faculty, must find a way. She has met, and solved the problems which faced her as a collegiate institution, for nearly a century and a quarter, and in this hour, she will again succeed and find a way.

As an American and a Christian institution, she must succeed! Middlebury cannot afford to fail!

MIDDLEBURY FACES BIG EASTERN TEAMS

All Elevens To Present A Formidable Line—Penn State Loses Star Player—Williams Follows Harvard

Next week Williams will appear on Porter Field to avenge the cutting defeat administered by the Blue and White last year. Coach Percy Wendell's men have been training for several weeks and aided by the coaching of several former Harvard players she should put up a stiff game. Charlie Boynton, brother of the famous Benny is expected to make a fine showing on the gridiron this season. Middlebury, aided by points to be gained at Harvard should again put the Purple warriors on the losing end of a close score and indications point to a close game throughout.

On Oct. 14, Coach Morey will take his squad to Hanover for the annual tussel with the Dartmouth Indian and the prospects for a victory over the Green are perhaps brighter than ever. The Green will be handicapped by the loss of seven of last year's star players, among them the great Jim Robertson, whose versatile ability and bulk of weight was a big factor in the Dartmouth game. The Dartmouth line will be significant by its lightness, minus the weight and experience of last year's captain. The backfield will be as light, if not more so, than the line, which at no time will average more than 190 pounds. All of the candidates for the backfield position weigh less than 165 and the two experienced ends weigh less than 150. Against this apparently light and inexperienced eleven Midd should make a great showing and with proper backing there is every indication that she will. Dartmouth is figuring on the first real test of the season on the following Saturday with Vermont.

Oct. 21 will be an important day for the Blue and White as that is the date that Middlebury will encounter Coach Hugo Bezdek's Nittany lions on Penn State Field at State College. This is the aggregation that held Harvard to a 14-14 tie at the Stadium last year and it should prove to be one of the big games for Midd. Penn State will be handicapped to a considerable extent by the loss of Killinger who played a strong game for Penn last year.

Oct. 28, will see Middlebury in Northfield, Vt., where they will take on the military eleven from Norwich University. The Norwich eleven can be depended on to give the Midd squad a good battle as they are always a resourceful and plucky outfit of fighters who fight until the last whistle has blown. Middlebury should triumph creditably over the soldiers.

The week following the Norwich game Middlebury will return to her home field where she will play the Tufts eleven on Nov. 4. Tufts is not making an unusual amount of talk about her squad this year which has been training for several weeks but it can be safely assumed that she will send her best up here to give the Blue and White a real battle. Comparatively little is known of the relative strength of Tufts this year but it is certain that by the time she faces Midd she will have an experienced squad.

Armistice Day, Nov. 11, will see the Middlebury team in New York where the game with Columbia will be played. Midd will have to exert every effort to get going against the eleven of Columbia. Coach O'Neill of the New York eleven has an even

We were just wondering, as we watched a certain Senator from Washington pull up Hepburn Hill, if the moustache epidemic, which seems to have found some supporters at Middlebury, is the men's reply to the bobbed hair craze.

Now that the Breadloaf outing is called, the annual college loving party will have to be held at the Gables.

And then she said, "Don't you love a night like this?" And he said, "I don't know, but I'll try."

According to the latest returns from the front, Prexy wasn't the only one to whom the grades "furnished food for thought."

Now that ye ed. is back and the sheet put on a business basis, we await results.

It is evident that he had a heavenly time during commencement for what more could have prompted him to write this head

And now that Prexy has told the Frosh what the college expects of them, we trust that the Sophomores will give them a warm reception.

To which The Campus reporter who covers the event may add—"A good time was had by all.' '

This conversation took place in our hearing the other day.

Feminine voice—"Well, you had to propose to me five times before I accepted you."

Masculine voice—"Quite true, Dearie, and then my luck gave out."

Our staff statistician has been busily engaged during the last half hour figuring the average number of dances, parties ,auto rides, etc., each student at Middlebury has had during the last three months.

According to published figures in the Mulberry Refrigerator, ye ed takes first place on auto rides, with an average of 99 and 94-100 per cent pure.

What made him change his mind?

Evidently the sophomores are making a good bid for a free-for-all fight by having the Frosh Rules printed on yellow paper instead of green. If its to be taken literally—leave us out.

It didn't take us long to wise up the fact that they were concocted in ye den of ye Knight Keewanggeewa.

Somebody told us that he was moving to south Starr, and we thought back over that glorious South Starr Banquet—where Uncle John was the toastmaster, and where Cousin Chuck looked on approvingly.

By the way have you noticed the fact that during the summer months, a member of the faculty of Middlebury college left the State of Vermont for the State of Matrimony.

But we wish him luck.

Y. W. GIVES FROSH RECEPTION IN GYM.

Meeting Saturday Night Brings Upperclass and Yearling Women Together For First Time

The annual reception for members of the freshmen class of the Women's College will be held in the McCullough Gymnasium Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock. The reception is given by the Y. W. C. A. of the college and is for the purpose of affording the members of the entering class an opportunity to meet the members of the three upper classes.

Miss Mathilda Axton '23, will welcome the freshmen to Middlebury, and Dean Eleanor S. Rose of the Women's College will speak. It is expected that the women members of the faculty will be present as well as the ladies of the faculty. The Campus report of the Middlebury-Harvard game will be read as soon as it is received. Refreshments will be served following the program.

that all of us, would like to see the College give its attention now for a decade at least to internal consolidation and development. We are conscious of the fact that buildings, endowment, faculty, even students, cannot alone make a college great. True greatness in a college can be achieved only by its output, and the output of a college is its graduates, and the greatness of the graduates is measured by unquestioned character and sound learning. These two elements combined in an individual become elements which make greatness possible, and when the graduates of a college assume positions in society and in the state which true character and sound learning necessarily will assume, then does the college become worthy in the eyes of all the people.

Let us not be carried away with the delusion of numbers. We see at the opening year inspired news items from the various institutions of the country announcing that the numbers in the college exceed those of a year ago. The administrators of some colleges seem to feel that this is the standard of a college's growth and that if, perchance, the number of students received this year should fall below the number received a year ago, the college owes society an apology and an explanation.

Oxford Decreasing Student Body

A few months ago I was the guest of the Master of Balliol College in Oxford, England. Naturally one of the first questions I asked him was as to the number of students in the College. His immediate and emphatic reply was, "Altogether too many, altogether too many. The war has mixed us all up. Most of our students at the outbreak of the war enlisted in service. Other students were taken in. When the war ended the old students came back and without any plan on our part we are simply overrun and are not doing good work." I asked him how many they had and his reply was, "We have over 200 and we never ought to have more than 150 and never expect to have when we get to running again at the outside more than 160. When this number is exceeded the work suffers, and we cannot afford to do that."

This gave another point of view, and I found that the sentiment expressed by the Master of Balliol was practically the sentiment of all of the heads of the Oxford colleges making up that great University. They were already devising plans to reduce the total number of students in Oxford University in order that quality might not be sacrificed.

Middlebury can never be and ought never to attempt to become a large college so far as numbers are con-

HARVARD WILL PLAY VETERAN BACKFIELD

Crimson Held But Two Scrimmages Since Starting Practice On Sept. 12—Fisher Develops Line

(Special To The Campus)

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 28—(By The Intercollegiate Service.)

The Harvard eleven which will meet Middlebury in the Stadium Saturday will include an entirely veteran backfield, led by Captain C. C. Buell at quarterback, supported by an experienced line made up of at least four letter-men from last year's eleven. Both ends will be men shifted from the backfield at the beginning of the season to fill the vacancies left by graduation, and one tackle will be a new man on the University squad.

Barring any last minute shift the line-up to start Saturday's game will be as follows: Capt. C. C .Buell, quarterback; P. F. Coburn, Roscoe Fitts, and George Owen, backs; Lewis Gordon and Percy Jenkins, ends; P. B. Kunhardt and C. C. Eastman, tackles; H. S. Grew and C. J. Hubbard, guards; and H. W. Clark, center. Of these, all are letter men excepting Eastman, Gordon and Jenkins.

Team A Shows Speed and Power

The Harvard squad started practice on September 12 and to date has held only two scrimmages. Both were highly successful, Team A showing both speed and power. With abundant backfield material Coach R. T. Fisher's greatest problem this year has been to find sufficient line material. To date only one good rush line seems to have been developed. Tackles and ends are especially lacking although further practice will probably take care of this deficiency.

themselves, and are held in high repute wherever teachers of these languages are found.

Dr. Katherine L. Bates Lectures

Dr. Katherine L. Bates, author of "America The Beautiful," and Miss Annie Beecher Scoville, a granddaughter of Henry Ward Beecher, were among the prominent faculty members of the English School at Breadloaf. The school was honored during the summer by having such leaders in literary work as John Farrar and Christopher Morley on its list of lecturers. Dr. V. C. Harrington, and Prof. Everett Skillings, of the college faculty were also instructing at the English School.

The Chemestry School and the Music School were very successful and the enrollment shows a large increase over that of former years. Miss Hayden, as Dean of the Music School, has developed the work in this department to a very high degree of efficiency.

NINE NEW PROFS. ON MIDD FACULTY

Two Former Instructors Return; Huggard '20, Promoted

Abbott And Perkins Resume Work After Leave of Absence

Twelve additions to the faculty were announced yesterday afternoon at the office of Professor D. L. Robinson, Secretary of the Faculty. Two of the new instructors were formerly members of the Middlebury faculty, while a third has been promoted from the rank of Graduate Fellow to Instructor. Professor Charles F. Abbott, Jermain Professor of Government and Law, and Professor Llewellyn R. Perkins of the Department of Mathematics, have returned from their Sabbatical leave.

Several of the appointees to the faculty are to replace instructors who resigned during the past year, although the place of Professor Robinson in the French Department, who has been promoted to Secretary of the Faculty, will be filled by Rene Hardre. Miss Clara P .Knapp of Bedford, Mass., will replace Miss Graham as Assistant Professor in the Home Economics Department. She will have full charge of the new Home Economics Practice House being established this year at the Homestead. Miss Knapp received her A. B. degree from Syracuse University in 1899. She was Instructor in Household Arts in the University of Chicago from 1917-1919, and from 1919 to last June held a similar position in the faculty of Syracuse University.

Assistant Professor Hardre comes from Beauvais, France. He studied in the University of Caen in Normandy, and for several years has taught in the Lycee de Beauvais. Marie Bideaud, who during the past summer has been instructing in the French School, will replace Mlle. Germaine Le Cossec who returned to France last week. Two additions have been made to the faculty of the Spanish School, Senor Primitivo P. Sanjurjo, who will take the place made vacant by the resignation of Senorita Rodriguez, and Senorita Milagros de Alda replaces Senorita de Onate. Senor Sanjurjo received his Ph. D. degree from the University of Madrid in 1904. During the past year he has been an Instructor in Spanish at Cornell University. Senorita de Alda is a Master of Pedagogy from the Normal College of Bilbao. She comes to Middlebury from Smith College.

Mr. Gardner Williams, a graduate of Columbia College in the Class of 1916, is to assist Professor McDonald in the Department of Economics. He served in the World War in the Air Service, and following his discharge from the service studied at the Harvard Law School and the Graduate School. Mr. Williams is a member of Phi Beta Kappa fraternity. Mr. William A. Huggard '20, has been promoted from Graduate Fellow in English to an Instructor in the same department. Mr. John Wright, a graduate of Hamilton College, has been appointed Graduate Fellow in English to succeed Mr. Huggard. He has been teaching in schools in the Middle West during the past few years. Mr. Wright will have charge of the courses in speaking and debating. In addition to work in mathematics, Assistant Professor Walter I. Bonney will have charge of a course in the Department of Political Science.

Professor H. P. Williamson de Visme, Dean of the French School of Middlebury College recently received a large photograph of President Millerand of France. The photograph was autographed by the President. Professor de Visme is having it framed and intends to hang it in the French House.

NEW DELTA UPSILON HOUSE TO BE COMPLETED IN APRIL

The new Delta Upsilon Chapter house now in the process of construction on Fraternity Row will be completed early in April, according to the plans of Thomas Rogers of Brandon, the contractor. Difficulty was encountered early in the work due to the rock formations on the construction site. It was necessary to blast for several days before the foundations could be laid and the actual construction begun.

TO ACCOMODATE 50 IN NEW DORM ROOMS

Recitation Hall Holds 200—Homestead New Home Econ. Practice House

Accomodations for 50 additional students have been provided by the administration during the summer vacation, through the building of an addition to Hillcrest, the new Franch House; by the acquisition of the old Wilcox house, to be used as the Spanish House; and by remodeling south Painter Hall and the Homestead. The recitation room capacity of the college has been increased by the erection of a temporary structure for members of the Women's College, which it is expected will accomodate 200.

Conditions will be somewhat crowded until all the work is completed, it was learned this morning, but it is expected that all of the students will be accomodated. The dormitory capacity will however, be taxed to the limit, in order that all the students may be cared for.

Dean E. J. Wiley of the Men's College said that all the rooms in the Men's College had been contracted for since early in the summer, and that this included the 14 additional rooms in Painter Hall. Men unable to be cared for in the dormitories and fraternity houses, he believes, will be able to secure accomodations in private houses near the campus.

Finish French House In November

The greatest difficulty in finding accomodations will be in the new French House due to the fact that the wing to be added to the southeast corner of the house will not be completed until early in November. The new section will make room for 20 students and provide kitchen and dining room facilities for the French students. The old French House will be used as a dormitory for women during the coming year.

All of the office section with the exception of the first floor, and the band room, have been taken from south Painter Hall, and the section has been remodeled into four floors with both double and single rooms. The new arrangement is on the same plan as that of both middle and north Painter Halls.

Four new offices have been built in on the top floor of the Old Chapel. The offices accomodate Professor Robinson, Secretary of the Faculty, Professor Abbott, Professor Skillings, and Mrs. Mills, buyer for the college.

The Kaleidoscope office has, for the time being, been moved into The Campus office in south Painter Hall. It is expected that other accomodations will be provided in the near future to relieve the congested condition of the two publications.

HOLD CAMPUS TRY-OUTS

Try-outs for positions on the Editorial Staff of The Campus will be held in The Campus office in south Painter Hall, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Candidates for positions on the Business Staff report next Wednesday afternoon at The Campus office at 3.30 o'clock.

COMMITTEE BOOKS WERRENRATH AGAIN

Flonzaley Quartet Here On Eve Of Armistice Day

Middlebury students and patrons will be given an opportunity to see the Players from the 47 Workshop of Harvard University present a drama, written and produced by them, early in February, Prof. L. J. Hathaway, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee, announced yesterday in giving the dates for the five numbers on the entertainment course for the 1922-1923 season. The bringing of the 47 Workshop to Middlebury marks a departure from the usual selections of the Entertainment Committee, which formerly brought to the college a lecturer of national, and in some instances, international prominence.

The five entertainments booked for the winter season include the Flonzaley Quartette which appeared here two years ago. They are reputed to be the finest string quartet in the world. November 10, the eve of Armistice Day, has been selected for their appearance here. The second number on the course, scheduled for December 6, will be a recital by Harold Bauer, the celebrated pianist, while on January 12, an old favorite will appear in the person of Reinald Werrenrath, America's premier baritone. Seldom does a singer win and hold his audience as does Werrenrath, who captivated a large Middlebury audience when here two years ago.

Due to the stage facilities that are only obtainable in the McCullough Gymnasium, the performance of the 47 Workshop will be given there. The players write their own play, paint their own scenery, costume the piece and produce it. Their work in and around Boston has been highly praised by the dramatic critics of the Hub.

The final number of the entertainment course will be given on March 7, when Albert Spaulding, the popular and leading American violinist, will play. Mr. Spaulding is a finished artist and has reached perfection on the violin that is rarely attained by an American.

WHITE ON LEAVE; SAILS FOR GENOA

Latin Prof. To Study In Italy—Davison To Take Graduate Work At Harvard University

Professor R. H. White, of the Department of Latin, sailed last Saturday morning on the White Star liner Cretic, for Genoa, Italy. He expects to travel extensively throughout Italy, spending the greater portions of his time in study of various places of classical interest. Professor White intends to make Genoa his headquarters throughout his stay in Europe.

Professor Wilfred E. Davison left Middlebury by auto for Cambridge, Mass., last Thursday afternoon. While he has not made plans for the entire year, he will spend the first semester doing graduate work in English at Harvard.

Four Faculty Members Resign

Four members of last year's faculty have resigned, while Professor Robinson leaves the Department of French and assumes his new duties as Secretary of the Faculty. Hollis R. Cooley, instructor in Mathematics, is teaching in Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, N. Y., and studying music in New York City.

COLLEGE LIBRARIAN ASKS THAT BOOKS BE RETURNED

Miss Laila A. McNeil, college librarian, requests those who took library books home during the summer vacation to return them at once to the Library, in order that the records may be completed for the past year. Changes are contemplated in the Library rules, but definite announcement cannot be made until approval has been given by the Faculty Committee on Administration.

TRUSTEES ELECT 4 TO BOARD IN JUNE

Botsford, '00, Simmonds '02, and Brigham '03, Chosen

Col. T. S. Woolsey, Yale '01, Is Fourth New Member Selected

Three graduates of Middlebury and one from Yale were elected to the Board of Trustees at its June meeting, and have signified their willingness to serve, President Paul D. Moody announced early this week. The new Trustees are Samuel B. Botsford, '00, Fay A. Simmonds '02, Elbert S. Brigham '03, and Col. Theoodore S. Woolsey, Yale '01.

Col. Woolsey was born in New Haven, Ct., in 1879, and from 1907 to 1915 he was a member of the U. S. Forest Service. Early in 1917 he became Assistant Professor of Forestry in Yale, but resigned to enter the army at the outbreak of the World War. He was commissioned a Lieutenant Colonel of Engineers in 1919, and during most of the war was attached to the headquarters staff of the A. E. F. in France. General Pershing, The British Government, France, and Belgium, cited him for honors during his service in the war. Col. Woolsey has made studies of forestry management in India, Austria, and parts of Germany, France, Corsica, Algeria and Tunis. He is the author of "French Forests and Forestry," published in 1917.

Mr. Simmonds was born in Dorset, Vt., and came to Middlebury from the Burr and Burton Seminary at Manchester, where, following his graduation from college, he entered business. In 1907 he became allied with Harris, Forbes and Co. investment bankers, in Boston, Mass., and in 1916 was made treasurer of the firm. He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Commissioner of Agriculture of the State of Vermont was the title conferred on Mr. Brigham in 1913 and he has continued in this capacity down to the present time. He was formerly president of the Vermont Horticultural Society and at the present time is head of the Franklin County Farm Bureau. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

Mr. Botsford is a member of the firm of Botsford and Lyttle of Buffalo, N. Y. He was born in Vergennes. Upon completing his college work here he studied law in Buffalo and was admitted to the bar in 1902. He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity.

LAST SATURDAY'S RESULTS

Penn State 54 — St. Bonaventure 0

Miss Ruth Graham, Assistant Professor of Home Economic, has left to join the faculty of Pennsylvania State College. Assistant Professor Guy J. Forbush, is teaching at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and Senorita Maria Diaz de Onate, formerly of the Department of Spanish, assumed her new work at Vassar College this Fall.

Rev. A. J. Bliss '98, of Jersey City was in Middlebury during the early part of the week.

WOMEN VICTORS IN SCHOLARSHIP RACE

Non-Sorority Women Lead Field; Pi Phi Second

Delta U First In Men's College—Seniors High in Class Averages

The men again bow to the women in the scholarship ratings according to the records made public at the Registrar's office yesterday. The women had a maximum lead of over 5 points above their nearest competitor, while the minimum was nearly 3 points ahead. Delta Upsilon, with a 80.05 average, has first honors for the Men's College, while the Non-sorority women, with an 85.60 grade, lead the field in the Women's College.

In both cases the competition for second place was very keen, Pi Beta Phi sorority being but seven hundredths of a point behind the Non-sorority women, and Sigma Phi Iota fraternity following Delta Upsilon with a 79.62 percent average.

The interclass averages give the senior men and women the lead in their respective fields, while the juniors, sophomores and freshmen take second, third and last place in the order named. The senior men are nearly five points above the average for all men, while the senior women have but a little over a point margin over the women's scholarship average.

The figures for the several fraternities are as follows:

1st	Delta Upsilon	80.05 p. c.
2nd	Sigma Phi Iota	79.62 p. c.
3rd	Kappa Delta Rho	78.47 p. c.

6th	Alpha Sigma Phi	77.33 p. c.
7th	Non-fraternity	74.94 p. c.
8th	Chi Psi	74.11 p. c.

Among the women the non-sorority women have the highest average. The figures for the several sororities are as follows:

1st	Non-sorority	85.60 p. c.
2nd	Pi Beta Phi	85.53 p. c.
3rd	Delta Omega Delta	84.51 p. c.
4th	Theta Chi Epsilon	84.12 p. c.
5th	Alphi Chi	83.82 p. c
6th	Sigma Kappa	83.05 p. c.
7th	Delta Delta Delta	82.80 p. c.
Average of fraternity men		77.49 p. c.
Average of non-fraternity men		74.94 p. c.
Average of all men		77.35 p. c.
Average of sorority women		83.96 p. c.
Average of non-sorority women		85.60 p. c.
Average of all women		84.65 p. c.
Average of all men and women		81.06 p. c.
Average of all fraternity men and women		80.01 p. c.
Average of all non-fraternity men and women		84.38 p. c.

Standing by classes:

	Men	Women
Seniors	83.08 p. c.	85.85 p.c.
Juniors	82.18 p. c.	85.43p. c.

BEQUEATHS $25,000 TO COLLEGE FUNDS

Money Divided Into Five Funds—Bennington Woman Creates "Stephen Fay Foundation"

Recent important bequests to Middlebury College are those of Harriet L. Hazeltine, late of Arlington, Mass., and of Margaret Fay Brown of Old Beninngton, Vt., John A. Fletcher, College Treasurer, announced this morning.

The Hazeltine bequest of $25,000 has been specifically apportioned as follows: $5,000 to be added to the General Endowment Fund; the interest on $2,500 to go to the Loan Fund for students; $2,500 to the Building Fund; $5,000 to form a Scholarship Fund; and $10,000, a special Endowment Fund. The college also has been left a half share in the residuary estate of her brother, Charles B. R. Hazeltine, the amount of which is unknown.

By the will of the late Margaret Fay Brown of Old Bennington, Middlebury

NEW SYSTEM USED IN GRANTING JOBS AND SCHOLARSHIPS

College Officials Try Rhodes Scholar Method

TWENTY MEN GIVEN NEW $100 AWARDS

Employment Bureau To Aid In Finding Odd Jobs

The increasing number of applications for admission to Middlebury have brought about changes in the awarding of scholarships and positions in the Men's College, it was disclosed at the office of the Dean this morning. According to the new plan, the qualifications of each applicant will be considered including his qualities of character and leadership, his scholarship record, and his ability in athletics, debating, literary work, music and other student activities.

Positions have been secured for a large number of men, but the problem of caring for all men who apply, it is hoped will be lessened by offering to the most needy at least part time employment. The selections for positions were made only after each man's record had been fully investigated, his temperament and physical qualifications for the work graded, his experience considered, and the possibility of his not having conflicting engagements during the year that would interfere with his work and study.

A departure from the normal is seen in the issuing of twenty $100 scholarships to the men who measure up to the prescribed qualifications while the scholarships to men who were unable to measure up to the new standards, will be lowered.

Students desiring odd jobs during the year are requested to file their names and college addresses with the Student Employment Bureau, who will inform them from time to time of opportunities for employment suitable to their needs. The office of the bureau is located in Dean Wiley's office.

Klinespehn—Perkins

Miss Gertrude Agnes Perkins, daughter of Mr. George J. Perkins of Brattleboro, and Walter Gehret Klinespehn were married June 24, at the home of the bride's father in Brattleboro. The Rev. C. C. Chayer of the First Methodist Church, Brattleboro, officiated .

The bride is a graduate of Middlebury College in the Class of 1917. During the past two years she has has been teacher of mathematics in Middlebury High School. Miss Perkins is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. She was attended by her sister, Amy E. Perkins.

The bridegroom has been a member of the Chemistry staff of Middlebury during the past two years. He was graduated from Lafayette College in 1918 and did graduate work at Harvard University the following year. He is a member of Alpha Chi Rho, and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities. Recently Mr. Klinespehn was elected to Tau Kappa Pi. The couple are residing in the Battell Block.

UNABLE TO ACCOMODATE STUDENTS—CANCEL OUTING

The annual Breadloaf outing which has been given at the opening of college for the past two years, will not be held this fall. Inability to accomodate the large number of students at Breadloaf Inn and the cottages, was given as the reason for not attempting the student holiday, Dean Eleanor S. Ross said yesterday.

WINS NOMINATION

Hon. Redfield Proctor

PROCTOR WINS IN VERMONT PRIMARY

Middlebury Trustee To Head State G. O. P. Ticket In Fall Campaign — Defeats Lieut-Gov. Abram Foote

Hon. Redfield Proctor of Proctor, Vt., a member of the Middlebury Board of Trustees, was nominated on the Republican Ticket for Governor in the state primary election on Sept. 12, defeating the present Lieutenant-Governor, Abram Foote of Cornwall. The nominee's father, Redfield Proctor, was a Governor of Vermont and founder of the Vermont Marble Co. During the Spanish war he was one of President McKinley's chief advisors, as well as a prominent member of the United States Senate.

Fletcher D. Proctor ex-'81, a brother of the present candidate, was also a Trustee of the college and from 1906-1908 was Governor of Vermont. He succeeded his father as head of the Vermont Marble Co.

Col. Proctor's majority was slightly over 5,000. He made but few speeches during the campaign, contenting himself with the record he had made in studying and acting upon the many problems which confront Vermont as a state. For many years he has been interested in philanthropic organizations, and has been chiefly instrumental in advancing the anti-tuberculosis work of Vermont. He was elected to the Middlebury Board of Trustees in 1919.

ART DENS BANNED SAYS NEW DECREE

Regulations Forbid Wall Decorations in Men's Dorms

College Officer To "Censor" Rooms—To Charge Occupant For Damage

Well, Boys, it's all over. The Greenwich Village art dens of Middlebury College are no more. The Saturday Evening Post covers, as well as the pictures from the Sunday edition of The Boston Advertiser will not be clipped and pasted on the walls. And with all this goes another decree—nothing shall be nailed on the wall. That means that the picture of our favorite movie actress (we're too modest to tell who it is) will have to be framed and in the words of the new Blue Law—"suspended from the picture moldings."

You can see at once what it is Boys—nothing short of a conspiracy. A few people get together and see the possibilities in the picture framing business and then persuade the college authorities that it is ruinous to the college property to allow Mary "Somebody's" picture to be nailed or pasted to the wall. It didn't take 'em long to do it either, for when we left here three months ago, such drastic action as this was not even thought of, let alone contemplated.

But that ain't all! Listen to this one—"An officer of the college will make frequent inspections of the buildings." There it is—the censoring clause. We knew when the prohibition forces took charge of Volstead Land, just what our chances of acquiring an education amid pleasing surroundings would be. Now we realize the truth of the poet's utterances—"Them days are gone forever."

Come to think of it, the guy who put these rules up must have never seen 'em before for he violated every one of 'em with the exception of the last which states that any damage done to the room shall be paid out of the pocketbook of the occupant's father. The rules are that nothing shall be pasted or tacked on the walls or woodwork, yet this was tacked on the woodwork. A first class attempt to reap a little income before college actually begins, is our deduction.

The rule says that such things shall be suspended from the picture mouldings. But seein' as we've got to be somewhat artistic we'll ask our Pearson's favorite for a single hair and hang it over our head in order that the words of the Prophet might be fulfilled which said—"heavy, heavy hangs over thy head—what thou shalt not do to receive it."

The rules writer says that this place is a "home" and now we are left to our own reflection, to their collection, and to our favorite slogan—"God Bless Our Home"—next June.

DR. THOMAS URGES STUDENTS TO SAVE

President of Penn State Asks Them to Show Lead in Economy

State College, Pa., Sept. 23 — Calling upon the colleges of the country to lead in a movement for "sensible economy," President John M. Thomas of the Pennsylvania State College today addressed the students of the institution on the "need of keeping college expenses down to a reasonable figure."

Dr. Thomas deplored the tendency among all classes of people to increase their personal expenses unnecessarily from year to year and proposed a reform in the direction of economy in student life. In his address the President urged the undergraduates to restrict their expenditures for social, athletic, musical and dramatic activities, beginning with the new college year.

CROSS COUNTRY TO HAVE THREE MEETS

Coach Brown Starts Practice On Triangle Course—State Meet Here Oct. 28

Three meets are on the Cross Country card as announced early this morning by Manager E. J. Klock '23, and include a triangular meet with R. P. I., Williams, and Middlebury to be held at Williamstown on Oct. 21; a dual meet with Dartmouth at Hanover on Nov. 4; and either a triangular or dual meet before the local fans, featuring Norwich, Vermont and Middlebury's harriers, on October 28.

Coach Brown is whipping his men into shape for these meets, and expects to start regular practices on the Triangle Course in the near future. All of last year's team will return with the exception of Cole, leading man in last season's cross country squad. The entering class, it was reported, include many men who possess great promise in this field of sport.

While the triangular meet between Vermont, Norwich and Middlebury has not been definitely signed, the Manager of Track at U. V. M. has signified his acceptance of the terms proposed by Manager Klock. No word has been received as yet from the track representative at Norwich, but it is expected he will accept the terms proposed by the Middlebury manager. Should Norwich fail to enter a team in the meet, a dual meet will be staged on the Triangle Course between U. V. M. and Middlebury, Manager Klock said.

Open Nine New Tennis Courts

Nine new tennis courts have been constructed in the rear of Hepburn Hall during the summer vacation. Three of these are in excellent conditions at the present time and on Saturday three more will be completed and ready for use.

With the completion of the remaining three courts, the congestion encountered during the past year on the present courts will be relieved. While the new courts were constructed for the use of the Men's College only, it is probable that two or more will be designated for use by the Women's College.

ANNOUNCE TEN NEW COURSES; WILL ADD OTHERS IN 2ND SEM.

To Require Contemporary Civilization of Frosh

CREATIVE WRITING OFFERED BY PERRIN

Prof. Swett To Give Economic Geography Course

Ten new courses are being offered during the first semester, Dr. Frank E. Howard ,Chairman of the Curriculum Committee announced early this week. The courses include those offered and required of freshmen in Contemporary Civilization, Three new courses in English, one in Geology, History, Latin, Mathematics, French and Physical Education.

Due to the requiring of the new course in Contemporary Civilization of all members of the entering class it will be necessary to divide the class into five sections, three for the members of the Men's College, and two for those in the Women's College. Professor J. S. Kingsley will have complete charge of the work in this department .

Assistant Professor Porter G. Perrin is offering two new courses in the Department of English, one in Business Communication, and a second in Creative Writing. Professor Frank W. Cady is offering a course in the History of English Drama, as a continuation of his course in the Modern Drama.

Assistant Professor Rene Hardre is offering a new course in the French School in Elementary Composition. Professor Phelps N. Swett has augmented his work in the Department of Geology by a course in General Economic Geography.

Makes World Politics A Year Course

Professor Allen M. Kline has developed his former course in Contemporary World Politics, which was offered for the first time during the second semester last year, and will give a full years work in this branch of contemporary history. In the Department of Latin, Prof. M. R. Sanford presents a new course in Roman Philosophy.

Professor L. R. Perkins, who returns to Middlebury after a year of graduate work at Harvard University, is giving a course in the Teaching of Preparatory Mathematics, which should prove of great interest to those looking forward to the profession of teaching. Miss Young, who resumes her work in the Department of Physical Education, is offering a course in Advanced Theory and Practice, which is open only to members of the Women's College.

DEAN WILEY PLANS VOCATIONAL SERIES

Dr. Cooper of Columbia School of Journalism and I. W. Dietz of Western Electric Co. To Speak

Charles P. Copper of the Columbia School of Journalism, and Mr. J. W. Dietz of the Educational Division of the Western Electric Company have been secured for the opening lectures of the vocational series, Dean E. J. Wiley said this morning. This is not the entire list, the Dean declared, but it is all that could be definitely announced at this time.

In order that the wishes of the student body may be met to a greater degree, the Dean is selecting an advisory committee of students, to confer with him on the matter of subjects and speakers for the course. The names of those who will serve on this committee, will be announced next week.

Dr. Cooper has long been associated with newspapers and was formerly Managing Editor on the old New York Sun. For twelve years he was on the staff of the New York Times. He began his newspaper career on the old Springfield Republican, which formerly was one of the most influential journals in America.

Lafayette Chemestry Professor's Work Appeals To Scientific World—Kleinspehn Assists In Research

"Fluidity and Plasticity," a book of universal appeal to the scientific world, was recently published by Dr. Eugene Cook Bingham '99, who for many years has been Professor of Chemistry at Lafayette College. The book deals with the science of the flow of matter, and since every form of matter flows under some condition or other, the subject is more than important. It deals with colloid materials, of which but very little is known at present.

W. G. Kleinspehn, of the local Chemistry staff, a graduate of Lafayette College, assisted Dr. Bingham in research work which has been tabulated in the above book.

MIDDLEBURY WILL FACE BIG EASTERN ELEVENS

stronger and heavier line than last year and the squad has been practising long enough to insure their making a strong fight this year.

As a grand finale and closing chapter to her 1922 season Middlebury will battle with U. V. M. on Porter Field on Nov. 18, in what will be the hardest fought and most spirited game of the year. Vermont has a star of no mean ability this year in Yarnell who was the big man on the Dartmouth Freshman team last year, which won every one of its games. Authentis reports from up Burlington way are to the effect that with one exception no member of the team weighs less than 190 pounds. This appears to be one of the big years for Vermont, whether it will be or not will be largely decided in the closing canto on Porter Field, and Midd will have half the say in the deciding argument.

WILL ELECT PRES. OF WETHERELL CLUB

Klimm Resigns—Parry To Preside At Opening Meeting — Graduation Costs 'Varsity Two Men

The Wetherell Debating Club will hold a meeting in the Old Chapel next Tuesday evening at 7:15 o'clock for the purpose of electing a President of the organization to complete the unexpired term of President Lester E. Klimm ex-'24, who has resigned. D. Haydn Parry, '24, Vice-President of the club will preside.

A meeting of the executive committee of the club will be held soon for the purpose of planning the work for the coming year. The 'Varsity lost two men by graduation and one by transfer to another college. At least five places will be open when the competitions are held for places on the 'Varsity teams.

Middlebury Will Have Sufficient Coal Supply For Winter Months

According to the present outlook Middlebury will not be noticably affected by the coal shortage which is considered to be acute in many colleges. At the present time there is quite a supply of soft coal used by the central heating plant on hand and a large supply is available to meet future needs.

The supply of Anthracite coal which is used in the various eating places and the women's dormitories on Weybridge St., is not so plentiful, but a small amount is being procured from the local dealers and the prospects of getting it in the usual amounts in the near future are very good. In the meantime a large amount of wood from the Battell Forest is being used to tide over the Weybridge St. houses. The English School at Breadloaf during the summer used this supply exclusively.

Prof. Myron R. Sanford recently attended the Phi Beta Kappa meeting in Cleveland.

CENTRALIZE WORK OF MRS. M. MASON

Mrs. William Mills Becomes College Purchasing Agent—Miss Dutton Back As Dietitian

A general re-organization of the management of the college dormitories and eating places was placed in force when college opened last Monday. The work of consolidation of the duties of Mrs. William Mills, formerly Manager of the Women's Halls, and of Mrs. Maud O. Mason, Matron of Hepburn Hall, was instituted early in the summer by the Administration.

Under the new system, Mrs. Mills becomes the Purchasing Agent of the College, and to Mrs. Mason has been assigned the oversight of all the college dormitories, including those of both the Men's and Women's Colleges. Miss Mary C. Dutton, formerly an instructor in the Department of Home Economics, has returned and the post of College Dietitian has been assigned to her.

Mrs. Mills' office is located on the top floor of the Old Chapel, directly in the rear of Dr. Collins' office.

1924 Kaleidoscope Elections To Be Held Early Next Week

Elections to the position of Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager of the 1924 Kaleidoscope will be held early next week, President Reginald M. Savage of the Class of 1924 said this morning. The elections are necessitated by the transfer of Mr. Norman H. Polhemus, the Editor, and Mr. Lester E. Klimm, the Business Manager, to other colleges. Whether changes will be made in the staff selected by the former Editor and Business Manager, has not been determined.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS OPENS 123rd ACADEMIC YEAR

upon to baptize into the Church of England a child of some neighbors who were not members of his faith. At the conclusion of the ceremony the father asked how much he owed the preacher. The reply was,"Ten thousand pounds." The poor man stood aghast and asked if the minister did not know that he did not begin to own a hundredth part of this, to him, princely sum. To which the minister replied that the man should realize that all the sacraments of the Church were priceless.

In a measure this same idea applies to cost in education. You may secure it for a few hundred dollars, but it has been made possible for you to secure it at all by great sacrifice and endeavors made in the past by others. Therefore, society is right in demanding more from the college man or woman, and a tendency is growing on the part of the colleges to demand an ever higher standard, alike of scholarship and of character.

Now there is always a certain degree of danger in saying things of this kind, for some people's heads are turned when they are told that they are privileged, because they do not realize that with privilege go obligation and responsibility. This is the type that it does not pay to educate. We have already referred to the statement of President Hopkins that some men should not go to college. If a man is not able to find this out for himself, the college should assist him speedily in coming to that conclusion. It is becoming less and less a matter of individual importance and increasingly more an affair of social importance—who goes to college and who does not. For the college is the creation of society.

I had this strongly brought home to me some years ago by a rather celebrated, though some would say notorious, radical, who had come to New York. He had been sent to see me and in conversation I asked the question, why ,when I had spent years on my education instead of starting right in to work, I was not entitled to expect more from society in the way of living conditions and so forth than one who had never studied. His answer was one I pass on to you. I owed more to society, he said, because after all, society had sent me to college, had made college possible, and had made possible my staying there in apparently unproductive labor while other boys of my age had to go to work.

I would not subscribe to all his positions, but whether or not he was right there, I leave to your own perception, and in the degree in which you can tell whether he was right or wrong, is the indication of whether or not you are worth educating.

It is well to remember this. Work for yourself and your work may seem to you to have an incentive. Work for others and you will find a higher incentive.

There is an old and clearly established fact that a great many men will do for others what they will not do for themselves.

"It is a good thing for strength to know
That someone needs us to be strong."

This was amply demonstrated in the War when men achieved tasks and endured hardships beyond their imagining, caught by the spirit of a great movement.

Lawrence, the great English statesman in India, records that on one occasion ,when a fire was sweeping over a little Indian village, one woman refused to go out from her poor little hut unless the sack which contained her grain went with her. No one was found strong enough to move it. News of this reached Lawrence. He hurried to the fire-threatened hovel, seized the sack of grain and carried it out. Next day, after the excitement had died down, he recalled the incident and went to see what he had done. He found that he could not move the sack a foot.

I hope that the meaning of this is not obscure. You can do great things intellectually and in every other way in college if you are being moved by a great sense that what you do is of service to mankind. If you look upon education selfishly, merely as something to fit you to earn more money, it is being wasted upon you, and you are unworthy of it.

In other words, the heart must be educated with the brain. "As the mind widens, the spirit of the man must also," said Theodore Roosevelt. "To educate a man in mind and not in morals is to educate a menace to society."

It would be easy to show how education in the past has been inspired by the men who believed in the spiritual. Least of all should we need reminders of this. It was a minister, Timothy Dwight, whose visit to this little town nearly 130 years ago resulted in this College, and our being here this September day. He was the son of a college nearly as old then as we are now, established by a group of ministers gathering together and contributing books from their own libraries. And Yale's older sister, Harvard, was founded in the same way. And these were for the most part daughters of those yet older colleges across the sea, Oxford and Cambridge, where to this day the forms and usages tell of their religious foundation. It would be hard today to point to one of the great universities springing up in the Near or Far East, which does not owe its inception ,however it may have developed, to missionary zeal.

To forget this, to look upon education as an end in itself, is to put oneself out of touch at the very outset with the main factor in education. It is to grasp at the shadow and lose the substance, to exalt the lesser and to forget the greater, to lose that sense of proportion which is the secret of useful knowledge as well as of life. For when you lose the sense of proportion, you make mountains out of molehills—a foolish business. But you also make molehills out of mountains—lose the sense of grandeur and magnitude in life and reduce it all to the deadly dull level of Main Street.

If you are doing me the compliment of following what I am endeavoring to say, you will remark that I referred to useful knowledge, as if there could be such a thing as useless knowledge. There is a sense, of course, in which there can be no such thing. Yet you will often be tempted to think that some of the knowledge you acquire is useless knowledge. But it is not so if in the acquisition of it you have gained certain masteries. If you have trained your mind to greater receptiveness, developed your ability to think for yourself, acquired habits of concentration and industry. You will never learn anything half as useful as how to use your mind. I hope you will often disagree with your teachers. You will not be much good unless you do. You will probably be wrong when you do. And I do not advise you to differ too much in matters of fact at examination time. But I do beg of you to think for yourselves—especially the fairer members of this assembly on my left. This is the great object and value of college, to train people to see and to think.

And often these powers come when we are in pursuit of some branch of knowledge which seems at the time being to yield least of value. Let me be definite. Last winter I received from a former student of this college, one of about my own generation, now a successful civil engineer, a letter in which he went on to say that he had come to believe that there was nothing like the classics, particularly Greek, to prepare a man for civil engineering. It developed powers of observation. One of the officials of one of the big electrical concerns when asked at a college what was the subject, the study of which was most useful to a man entering his employ, answered, to the surprise of all not physics or engineering or mathematics, but Greek.

Whether you graduate next June, or the next, or the next, or the next, with a knowledge of French grammar, economics, and the period of the Crusades, matters less than whether you have learned to work, to study, to think, to concentrate. For some of these things you will forget completely and contentedly and disgracefully a short time after graduation. I some times console myself with the realization that if I do not at present possess the knowledge I would need to graduate with a B. A. or a B. S., I need not be frightened at being in this dilemma, for I do not know enough to pass the entrance examinations. I need not be scared about my inability to get out, because I couldn't get in in the first place now—but I could once.

And you will learn habits of work, and of concentration, gain ideas of proportion, begin to realize the vastness of knowledge, if you but work as this morning I am sure you all intend to do.

It matters less which college you go to, than what you go to college for. It matters less what you study than the way in which you study it.

The foremost athletic coach in this country said a short time ago that he would not want his son to go to a college that was interested only in seeing how much academic learning it could cram into him. We hope that Middlebury will not do this for you. But that you will learn to study here, learn to see clearly, to think deeply, and to speak truthfully what is in your mind. This is mental discipline and it is for that you are here. Whether or not you get it depends upon the spirit with which you enter your work, and the way in which you are able to apply in study the spirit you admire in sport.

As Professor Wright has expressed it:

"When there's studying to do
Or a center to go through,"—
Let both be done in the same spirit.

cerned. But it can and should stand second to none in all our country, not excepting the great university, in the thoroughness of its training, both moral and intellectual. Its graduates should be so well equipped and be men and women of such strength of character that in whatever graduate school they enter or in whatever profession they take up they will never feel the necessity for apologizing for the fact that they graduated from a small college in Vermont. It is to me an interesting fact that in the past I do not believe Middlebury graduates have maintained an apologetic attitude toward their Alma Mater. But this side of what Middlebury College gives its students and the endowment with which it equips them for their life work should receive special emphasis. This is unusually necessary in these days when such masses of young people are rushing to the colleges of the country.

Advocates Thorough Physical Training

In athletics we often hear the statement made that a college must put a good team into the field in order to bring the college to the attention of other institutions and especially of young men contemplating college work. Is that necessary now, however true it may have been a few years ago? Is it not more important that the athletics of a college shall be carried on with the chief purpose of developing its entire student body physically? We know how important it is for one who goes out from a college in these days to compete in the solving of life's problems that he be physically up to par. Why should a college try to develop a small team for spectacular work alone and not put chief emphasis upon the all round physical development of its entire student body?

In a word, I would like to see a student's progress in physical development receive due recognition in his promotion. I believe that a student might well be conditioned if he fails to take that exercise which the physical director prescribes and let that condition stand over him until he makes good .Why should a college graduate physical unfits if, in the judgment of the college authorities, that unfitness is due to laziness or to a lack of appreciation of the value of balanced physical development? Middlebury, with its unsurpassed location, its great forest reserves, with all of the atmosphere that the splendid bracing climate of Vermont can provide, should turn out graduates not only morally and intellectually fit, but physically fit to meet and solve the problems of life.

Must Limit Enrollment

For Middlebury to do its best work it must necessarily limit its student body. It would be suicidal to attempt to receive all who apply .This would be to sacrifice the work done to numbers on the roll. It would not be a difficult matter to decide how large a student body can be properly cared for and adequately trained. Let that be the limit until the capacity of the College is increased. It of course is to be expected that there will be additions to the faculty, that there will be new buildings erected, that the College will be able from time to time to add to the number of accepted students. The great aim of the College should be to give such a training and to provide such an equipment to all who have the privileges of its halls that it will not need to seek for students, but will be in a position to choose those who seem to be best suited to the ideals and purposes of the College. Not only will students seek such an institution in numbers greater than Middlebury can accept, but patrons of sound and balanced education will deem it a privilege to add to Middlebury's endowment and to its plant. The College under those conditions will need neither to solicit students nor beg for money. In my judgment the motto of Middlebury should be, "Quality Not Numbers."

Editor's Note—This is the fifth of a series of articles on "The Situation at Middlebury" being written by representatives of the Administration, the Faculty and the Board of Trustees. A sixth article will be published in an early issue.

Dr. Barton is a member of the Class of 1881, and was formerly President of Euphrates College, Kharput, Turkey. Since 1894 he has been Secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. In 1895 he was elected to the Board of Trustees of Middlebury College. Dr. Barton is a member of Delta Upsilon and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

HUGH WALPOLE LECTURES IN MEAD CHAPEL OCT. 12

gether. Otherwise, he prophesied, there might be another European catastrophe which would again effect the United States. In regard to the Turkish situation, Mr. Walpole believes that Kemal Pasha will come to terms, at least for the present.

"If Winter Comes," Mr. Walpole said, "had a tremendous sale." "This Freedom," however, by the same author has met a disappointing reception. One of the great successes of the season has been "Ulysses," by an Irishman named James Joyce. This book is positively the last word in stories representative of modern psychology. I wish more American writers would visit England," he said, after mentioning several American writers who are popular in that country.

Mr. Walpole is to deliver six lectures on English novelists at the Broadhurst Theatre in New York the first week in November. His subjects will include Thomas Hardy, Joseph Conrad, Bennett, Wells, Galsworthy, and many lesser known writers

While Mr. Walpole is prominent among the literary critics of the world, he is equally prominent as a novelist, and many consider him as England's leading representative in this field today. His last novel, "The Thirteen Travelers," is a study in war psychology. A short time ago, Mr. Walpole published a trilogy, concerning the World War, but centering chiefly about Russia and Russian characteristics. "The Dark Forest," a member of the group, is probably the most famous.

Mr. Walpole's visit to Middlebury is not a part of the regular entertainment course, although it is being handled by the Entertainment Committee of the college. The tickets for the lecture are fifty cents each, and will go on sale Friday, Oct. 6, at both Frost's Drug Store and the College Book Store in the Old Chapel. All seats are reserved.

Boston Alumni Association of Middlebury College, has been in charge of the arrangements, and will act as Toastmaster for the occasion. Among the Middlebury people now at Harvard, both in the College and Graduate School are, Professor Wilfred E. Davison '13, Murray Adams '22, J. R. H. King ex-'24, Payson R. Webber ex-'24, DeVaux de Lancey ex-'23, and James D. Wolcott ex-'23.

A special service has been established whereby it will be possible for The Campus to secure a report of the game over the Western Union press wire.

Prof. Davison and Murray Adams are to cover the bulletin which will be posted at various places in town as soon as it is received. Representatives of Middlebury at all games away from home will cover the event and wire a summary to The Campus office.

'VARSITY TAKES 23 TO HARVARD; LEAVE TODAY

and yesterday 31 men were at work on the field. Coach Morey has not been able to give much attention to the new men, due to the extra work in putting his machine into running order for the Harvard game. Next Monday he will start working with the material that has reported since the squad returned from camp.

Moynihan In At Center

The return of Middlebury's fighting center to the line has put new vim into the team. Moynihan's services have always been of great value to the local 'Varsity. It was thought ,following his operation for a mastoid abscess last fall, that he would be unable to play football again, and even up to Monday night his participation in this year's 'Varsity contests was a matter of question.

The participation of both Papke and Klevenow in Saturday's contest is a matter of doubt, and should not the big quarterback appear, either Holquist or Williams will be used. Novotny, a Milwaukee recruit, will substitute for Klevenow should he be unable to play.

Two Veterans In Backfield

Two veterans of last year's 'Varsity are in the backfield, in the person of Captain "E. D." Drost and "Stan" Ashley. Drost has been on the job with his usual flash from the very start, and his work in practice shows a marked improvement over that of last season. Ashley who has been troubled with a bad leg, has been going very well, and is the main reliance of the Blue and White in the punting division.

Either Daly, a leading man in last year's squad, or Schwarts, the Syracuse boy whose work has been one of the pleasing features of every practice, will complete the backfield. Both men are very fast and exhibit marked ability in the position of fullback. Kalin was transferred from his place at guard which he held throughout last season to tackle.

Probable Lineup

The probable line-up for Middlebury in the Harvard game will be Klevenow, l. e.; Reigleman or Davie, l. g.; Kalin, l. t.; Moynihan, c.; Ehlert or Brosowsky, r. t.; Mullen or Frank, r. g.; Gallagher ,r. e.; Papke, Holquist or Williams, q. b.; Ashley, l. h. b.; Schwartz or Daly, f. b.; Drost, Captain, r. h. b. Substitutes: Leary, Potter, Novotny, Kilbride, Jakway, Yeaw.

The game will be called at 3:00 o'clock. According to the agreement, the periods will be twelve minutes. The team upon reaching Boston tonight will stay at the Lenox Hotel. Tomorrow morning they will go to the Stadium at Cambridge, and in the afternoon will have a short workout on the Boston College field.
